Attention Wildcats!

Helpful Hint
Find the right place to study. The best place to study isn't the same for everyone. Some people work well in the library, but others work better at their dining room table. Find an environment that suits you, keeping in mind that a quiet place is often the best option.
Congratulations to all of our Fall 2017, Spring and Summer 2018 Graduates!

We are proud of you and would like to invite you to Commencement on May 10th.

Please RSVP here if you haven't already.

Happiness Hours
Come join us in a series of art therapy sessions, UA Main tours, interviews, and community spirit.

Fridays from 4:30 - 5:30

HACU Blog

The University of Arizona South selected four outstanding student representatives to attend the annual HACU National Capitol Forum in Washington, D.C. this past week: Josue Becerra, Adam Grant, Angela Lucero, and Douglas Santiago. These students are highly passionate and motivated by higher education. They take initiative to support and advocate for others, are actively involved in their school and community, and have a general knowledge of the U.S. government system.

While at the Forum, each student wrote blog posts describing their experience. Share their journey and read their posts here!

2018 Summer Workshop Series

Literacy in the Wild: Getting Foreign Language Learners out of the Classroom and into the World, June 4-8, 2018

By developing literacy in a foreign language and culture, learners can ideally gain the ability to encounter not only new words but also new physical, virtual, and imagined worlds (Kern, 2000). But sometimes the four walls of the classroom feel confining and it can be difficult to reconcile pedagogical imperatives to bring in authentic texts with the active involvement of experiential learning. This one-week workshop series explores strategies for connecting foreign language literacy with the "wild" (Thorne, 2010), that is with real-world contexts of use. Participants may register for individual workshops by David Malinowski, Chantelle Warner and Lawrence Williams, or they may register for the whole week.

Reading Globally: Critical Issues in Global Literature for Children and Adolescents, June 25-27, 2018

We live in a world where our lives are interconnected in complex ways across global cultures as well as fractured with tensions that divide us. Global children's literature provides one means of facilitating intercultural understanding, but issues of availability, access, authenticity, and classroom use must be addressed for this potential to be realized. In this institute, participants will explore current trends in global literature for children and adolescents, examine critical issues and approaches to analyzing these books, and experience strategies for critically engaging with global literature. Participants will use the Worlds of Words collection (http://wowlit.org) to be immersed in a wealth of global literature as well as to delve deeply into key books to develop critical understandings and to consider how to invite students into a critical reading of the word. An additional component will be interactions that pair classic, well...

June 11-13, 2018 from 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. in Flagstaff

A three-day, highly interactive workshop will focus on gaining subject matter expertise, exploration of available resources, and development of instructional units for students to more deeply understand the components, connections and trends in a changing Southwest environment. The facilitators are dedicated to honoring and using the participating teachers’ knowledge and expertise to work together to develop a deeper understanding of complex systems, and apply systems thinking to the Southwestern regional issues of extreme weather, fire, drought, flooding, and ecosystem dynamics. Educators will have significant time to develop strategies for their students to help them create connections between the pieces of the Southwestern "Earth Puzzle".

The workshop includes field trips to the NOAA National Weather Service in Bellemont, AZ to...
National Weather Service in Bellemont, AZ to launch a weather balloon, the Arboretum of Flagstaff where to engage in a variety of authentic citizen science projects, and the US Geological Survey to join in remote sensing activities and increase the ability to use authentic scientific data with students. Cost is $25.00 and includes light breakfast foods, snacks, and a full lunch provided daily.

Register here.

Scholarships

The Arizona Community Foundation invites high school seniors and current college students throughout Arizona to apply for more than 100 scholarship awards. With the completion of just one online application, students are automatically matched with all of the awards for which they qualify. Last year, nearly $1.7 million was awarded to thousands of Arizona students.

The general application for the 2018-19 academic year is now live.

To learn more and begin the general application online, visit www.azfoundation.org/scholarships.
